THE VICTORIAN BOOK OF THE DEAD

CHRIS WOODYARD'S NEWEST COLLECTION

UNEARTHED FROM THE GRAVEYARDS OF THE PAST…

Chris Woodyard, author of the The Ghosts of the Past series, digs through long-buried newspapers and journals, for this fascinating look at the 19th-century obsession with the culture of death. The Victorian Book of the Dead unearths extraordinary tales of Victorian funeral fads and fancies, ghost stories, bizarre deaths, mourning novelties, gallows humor, premature burial, post-mortem photographs, death omens, and funeral disasters. Resurrected from original sources, these accounts reveal the oddities and eccentricities of Victorian mourning. Packed with macabre anecdotes, this diverting, yet gruesome collection presents tales ranging from the paranormal and shocking to the heartbreaking.

The Victorian Book of the Dead includes:

- mourning bicycles, black boudoirs, and sable cigarettes for the up-to-date widow
- a child's ghost who beckoned for her father to follow her into death
- the girl who died of lizards
- the widow who fired the undertaker who wouldn't give her trading stamps.
- a corpse that spontaneously combusted in the coffin
- the fiendish parrot who murdered his mistress
- Professor Segato's petrified corpse furniture
- visions of the Grim Reaper and the Angel of Death
- the man who lived in his wife's tomb
- A mourning wreath made from a murdered family's hair
- interviews with undertakers, post-mortem photographers and morgue attendants
- And many more long-lost tales of the morbid, mournful, and macabre from the Victorian era.

Sure to appeal to ghost-story fans, history buffs, and steampunk aficionados around the USA.
